DESCRIPTION OF LEVELS

Examples of work and descriptions are meant to progress through the levels. For example, an employee at a level III may also perform work listed within the previous levels.

Note: Factors that may distinguish between journey and senior levels include the degree of independence in performing the work, the complexity of the work, the scope of the responsibility and nature of the program, and the employee's related experience. Other factors may include the complexity and responsibility of assigned caseloads, specialization of practice, and type of practice setting. Employees at the journey level generally manage more routine or standard caseloads using foundational medical knowledge, while escalating unusual or complex cases to more experienced senior-level employees. Journey-level employees may independently perform the full range of work identified within current or previous levels or may assist others performing work of greater complexity. Senior-level employees may perform the full range of work identified within each level, and/or may coordinate and/or oversee that work.
