DESCRIPTION OF LEVELS

Examples of work and descriptions are meant to progress through the levels. For example, an employee at level IV may also perform work listed within the previous levels.

Note: Factors that may distinguish between entry and journey levels include the level of independence in performing the work and the complexity of the work and may include the employee's related experience, education, and certifications. Employees at the journey levels may independently perform the full range of work listed in the examples or may assist others in that work.

ECONOMIST I: Performs routine (journey-level) economics work. Works under moderate supervision, with limited latitude for the use of initiative and independent judgment. Employees at this level may rely on direction from others to solve problems that are not standard and may occasionally assist others in performing work of greater complexity.

ECONOMIST II: Performs complex (journey-level) economics work. Works under general supervision, with moderate latitude for the use of initiative and independent judgment. Employees at this level routinely assist others in performing work of greater complexity and may provide guidance to others.

Note: Any senior-level employee (levels III-IV) may serve as a lead or supervisor. Senior-level employees may perform the full range of work identified in the levels preceding their own and/or may oversee or coordinate that work for others. Factors that may distinguish between senior levels include the scope of responsibility and oversight, the complexity of the work performed, and the employee's related experience, education, and certifications.*

ECONOMIST III: Performs advanced (senior-level) economics work. Works under limited supervision, with considerable latitude for the use of initiative and independent judgment. Employees at this level may lead and conduct highly complex studies and, work on large scale or high impact projects and reports, and may:

- Develop research techniques, methodologies, and procedures.
- Develop and conduct presentations.
- Provide technical advice on economic relationships and conditions.
- Identify and evaluate economic factors relating to programs and projects.
- Formulate recommendations, policies, and plans to address economic problems.
- Interpret economic conditions and advises on implications.

ECONOMIST IV: Performs highly advanced (senior-level) economics work. Works under minimal supervision, with extensive latitude for the use of initiative and independent judgment. Employees at this level may be considered technical experts in the field, may oversee multiple and highly complex studies, and may approve recommendations, policies, and plans to address economic problems.
