DESCRIPTION OF LEVELS

Examples of work and descriptions are meant to progress through the levels. For example, an employee at level V may also perform work listed within the previous levels.

Note: Factors that may distinguish between journey levels include the degree of independence in performing the work, the complexity of the work, the scope of responsibility, and the employee's related experience, education, and certifications. Other factors may include the scope and nature of the education program. Employees at the journey levels may independently perform the full range of work identified within current or previous levels, or may assist others in that work.

EDUCATION SPECIALIST I: Performs routine (journey-level) consultative and technical assistance work related to an agency educational program. Works under moderate supervision, with limited latitude for the use of initiative and independent judgment. Employees at this level may rely on direction from others to solve problems that are not standard. Employees may also occasionally assist others in performing job duties of greater complexity.

EDUCATION SPECIALIST II: Performs moderately complex (journey-level) consultative and technical assistance work related to an agency educational program. Works under general supervision, with limited latitude for the use of initiative and independent judgment. Employees at this level may work more independently than those at the previous level, routinely assist others in performing job duties of greater complexity, and may:

- Develop course curriculum and other educational materials; participate in exam development and exam performance analysis.
- Prepare administrative reports and perform work on studies and specialized projects.
- Conduct training related to the education program.

EDUCATION SPECIALIST III: Performs complex (journey-level) consultative and technical assistance work related to an agency educational program. Works under general supervision, with moderate latitude for the use of initiative and independent judgment. Employees at this level may provide guidance to others and may:

- Collect, organize, analyze, and prepare materials in response to requests for program information and reports.
- Recommend corrective actions to ensure or restore compliance with program requirements, laws, regulations, policies, and procedures.
- Prepare justifications for implementing procedural or policy changes.
- Analyze legislation to develop recommendations for policy and program issues related to the implementation of, improvement in, and changes in program funding.
- Monitor the achievement of program goals and recommend action(s) to improve effectiveness.

Note: A senior-level employee (levels IV-V) may serve in a lead or supervisory role. S level employees may perform the full range of work identified within levels preceding their own and/or may coordinate, evaluate, or oversee that work for others. Factors that may distinguish between senior levels include the scope of responsibility and oversight; the nature, scope and complexity of the work performed; and the employee's related experience, education, and certification. Senior-level employees may work with the largest and/or most complex education programs and/or multiple programs.

EDUCATION SPECIALIST IV: Performs advanced (senior-level) consultative and technical assistance work related to an agency education program. Works under limited supervision, with considerable latitude for the use of initiative and independent judgment. Employees at this level may:

- Develop and implement effective techniques for evaluating programs and guide staff in the development and integration of new methods and procedures.
- Conduct quality assurance reviews and evaluations of program and department goals.
- Consult with public and private agencies involved in the program to resolve problems, identify training needs, and discuss program effectiveness.
- Determine the methodology and delivery of educational courses; may deliver training.
- Speak to professional groups to coordinate, improve, and stimulate interest in the program and to secure support for programs.

EDUCATION SPECIALIST V: Performs highly advanced (senior-level) consultative and technical assistance work related to an agency educational program. Works under minimal supervision, with extensive latitude for the use of initiative and independent judgment.

Employees at this level may:

- Develop program policies, procedures, and manuals.
- Develop and track contract and grant deliverables and budgets related to the educational program and evaluate the quality of the services and deliverables provided.
- Identify the need for and implement new programs.
- Prepare program budget.
