DISTINGUISHING CHARACTERISTICS

Distinctions between levels in the Director job classification series may be based on many factors including the department's, division's, or business function's scope, complexity, and organizational impact. In addition, external labor market factors for certain occupations may also impact the appropriate level within the series. Directors that oversee 1) multiple departments or divisions, 2) a department or division that has complex administrative functions, or 3) a large or highly specialized workforce or a workforce with a wide array of management level positions, are often classified at the higher levels within the job classification series. Directors that oversee 1) small departments or divisions, 2) have fewer, less complex administrative functions, or 3) a small or homogenous workforce, are often found in lower levels within the job classification series.
